WORK EXPERIENCE

The First official company I worked with is Incall outsourcing. I worked there as a Telesales representative, closer and co-team leader. I worked there for seven months. That was enough time for me to get a good English accent and several top-achiever awards.

In the web development field, I joined a company for two months for training purposes. At this time, I started learning about Laravel. Before all of that I was only a front-end developer I was trying to teach myself how to use React but, it was so hard because at this time I had no background about this field. I was just hustling by my own.

I have other work experience in different fields but I will leave it for the interview.

MY NEXT STEP

"Looking ahead, my primary goal is to deepen my expertise in full-stack web development. I aim to master Laravel framework and others like React and Node.js, while also exploring new trends such as cloud technologies and Progressive Web Apps. I plan to build a robust portfolio of dynamic projects, contributing to open-source initiatives and collaborating with a team of developers. Long-term, I envision taking on a leadership role in a tech company where I can mentor other developers and drive innovative solutions."
